Sibling Mail: Marriage Module

OVERVIEW

This module almost exactly replicates the Marriage section of the 2005 mail survey, with a slight shift in focus and one addition. Where the 2005 questionnaire only asked about the participant's relationship with their spouse, the 2011 version expands its coverage to also include participants who live with partners in marriage-like relationships. Moreover, an item about the participant's perception of their spouse or partner's health has been added from the 2005 mail survey's Health section. Overall the mail survey explores such topics as intimacy, the division of household labor, the participant's perceptions of their relationship's quality, their level of satisfaction with it, sexual pleasure and frequency, and potential reasons for decreases in sexual activity, if applicable.

For detailed biographical information on the participant's spouse or partner, see also the CAPI administered Marriage, Cohabiting, & Dating Module.
