

University of Wisconsin-Madison
Department of Sociology announces the

2005 William H. Sewell Memorial Lecture

Jeremy Freese

University of Wisconsin-Madison and Harvard University

Biopportunity and Change: Three Posts from the Intersection of Same Old Us and Brave New World

Friday, December 2, 2005

8417 William H. Sewell Social Science Building

1180 Observatory Drive, Madison, WI

3:00 p.m.

Reception to follow the lecture.

Jeremy Freese received a Ph.D. in Sociology from Indiana University. An Associate Professor of Sociology at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, Professor Freese is currently a Robert Wood Johnson Scholar in Health Policy Research at Harvard University. Central to his sociological interests has been articulating relationships among biological, psychological, and social processes, especially in the context of scientific and technological change. At Wisconsin, he has taught courses in social psychology and methods of social research.