

For next class, (1/23), please write one or two paragraphs illustrating the type of economic issues you find especially interesting. These can be either broad or specific, and can have their origin anywhere—classes you have taken, stories you have seen on television news shows, conversations with friends and family. Examples include:

- economic growth or cycles in a particular country (Russia, Argentina, Korea, ...)
- how milk production and prices would change if Wisconsin farmers were treated equally to farmers in other states
- whether having a nationally prominent football team improves the quality of applicants to a college
- the impact of an Economics degree on the salary people get when they graduate from college
- how economic conditions influence presidential elections
- whether on-line music sales will obsolete the sale of CDs
- the relationship between stock prices and interest rates
- the likely effects of a change in U.S. immigration laws on U.S. unemployment rates
