Economics 442
Topics in Macroeconomics
(2/9/2015)

Instructor: Prof. Menzie Chinn
UW Madison
Spring 2015
When the output gap becomes more negative, then inflation tends to fall.
Inflation expectations are well anchored in recent times, as compared to the 1980’s.
Large changes in oil price inflation tended to have a bigger impact on inflation in the 1970s.