

WISCER Newsletter

The Wisconsin Center for Ethnographic Research

2022-
2023

A group of WISCER graduate students with Spring 2023 guest speaker, Kimberly Kay Hoang (University of Chicago).

Publications

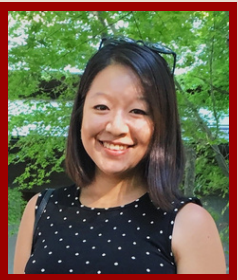

The Qual Methods Workshop hosts paper workshops during the academic year. This year, a handful of these papers were published.

Kristina Fullerton Rico published "Grieving in the 'Golden Cage': How Unauthorized Immigrants Contend with Death and Mourn From Afar" in Social Problems. Link.

Katie Jensen published "You Will Never Walk Alone: Ethnographic Training as Collective Endeavor" in Teaching Sociology with Águeda Ortega and Javier Auyero. Link.

Wendy Li published "Regulatory Capture's Third Face of Power" in Socio-Economic Review. This work was featured in The American Prospect and in a report by Elizabeth Warren's office. Link.

Ruo-Fan Liu (Mikki) published "Hybrid Ethnography: Access, Positioning, and Data Assembly" in Ethnography. Link.

A number of our members also received paper awards from organizations like ASA and SSSP, including Youbin Kang, Wendy Li, Ruo-Fan Liu (Mikki), and Chiara Packard.

Grants and Fellowships

Each summer, WISCER hosts a grant writing group for graduate students. This year, four writing group members received grants or fellowships.

Sadie Dempsey received a 2023 Russell Sage Dissertation Research Grant and a 2023-24 Mellon Public Humanities Fellowship.

Youbin Kang received a 2023 ASA Doctoral Dissertation Research Grant.

Emily Miller (Educational Policy Studies) received a 2023-2024 Michael W. Apple Fellowship.

Chiara Packard received a 2023 ASA Doctoral Dissertation Research Grant.

Ph.Ds and Postdocs

Kurt Kuehne, a longtime WISCER member, has accepted a 3-year postdoc at NYU Abu Dhabi.

From Kurt: "The intellectual and personal support from the WISCER community has been a great help along the entire journey. Thank you, everyone."

Join WISCER!

Our community is open to folks regardless of research experience or institutional affiliation. If you'd like to stay up to date with all things WISCER, please email Sadie Dempsey at smdempsey@wisc.edu.

